Front Porch Software offers free training for users of Shared Ground™

(University Place, WA - December 1, 2005) — Front Porch Software™, LLC, a developer of software designed to ease difficult situations involving children, today announced a new training program for its flagship product, Shared Ground™—a shared parenting calendar program.

Online training for Enterprise and Co-Parenting License holders are scheduled periodically to meet demand. There is no cost associated with any of the trainings, which are fully interactive. End users need only a computer with Internet access and a telephone. Separate sessions for divorced parents or caregivers and divorce professionals, such as mediators or attorneys are available. Also offered is the option for a custom group session for law firms and associations that require training on specific functionality.

Front Porch Software President Jeff Thomas says, “Although the software is simple to use, our customers are busy professionals with little time learn a brand new program. This service is sure to enhance their capabilities, making the process of setting up a parenting plan calendar more efficient.”

The training schedule for the next three months is available at www.sharedground.com.

To schedule a training session, call (866) 468-6800, write us at support@sharedground.com or visit www.sharedground.com for details.

About Shared Ground™

Shared Ground was developed for attorneys, mediators, and divorced families, and simplifies the process of creating and managing parenting plans and now with even more functionality. It significantly reduces the time divorce professionals spend building and managing custody agreements. Attorneys can share the electronic plan with clients, opposing counsel, and anyone else working on the plan. All parties using the software are able to view calendar events years in advance and view the results of proposed changes instantly. Parents use the software to update the schedule from year to year.

About Front Porch Software™, LLC

Front Porch Software™, LLC was founded in 2003 by Jeff Thomas. His vision for the firm was to develop software tools that would help people in difficult life situations, particularly those involving children. The effortless software is designed to revolutionize the entire process of developing parenting plans for divorcing parents and family law attorneys. Version updates are available for users to download at no charge. The software can be purchased at www.sharedground.com.

Expect to see other life-enhancing products from Front Porch Software.
